

Separation — The Numbers

For: Bowshul · From: Vignesh · Date: _____

One page. No history. This is what moves, and what has to be true before completion.

1. The structure

	Today	After
Trioangle	50 / 50	Bowshul — 100%
InnBlockchain	50 / 50	Vignesh — 100%
Cash either way		None

Bowshul takes all of Trioangle — clients, team, office, equipment, the crypto holding, the brand, the name. One exception: the MG, §4.

Vignesh takes InnBlockchain, with everything it owes — §2.

Trioangle never funds blockchain again. No veto from Vignesh on anything. Every decision is Bowshul's.

2. What each company owes, and what covers it

Trioangle — to Bowshul

	₹L
Crypto holding	88
Total payables	66
Covered, with headroom	22

Bowshul is not taking on a hole. The crypto holding covers everything Trioangle owes, with room to spare — and Vignesh is not asking for any part of his half of it.

The ₹66L is what Trioangle owes outside the two partners. Vignesh's own unpaid director's salary is dealt with separately, in §5.

InnBlockchain — to Vignesh

	₹L
Total payables	9
Carried by	Vignesh, in full

That ₹9L is everything InnBlockchain owes.

3. What stays with Trioangle

- OD facility, ₹18L — company borrowing, not either partner's personally. Stays with the company.
- Personal guarantees — every guarantee or pledge either partner has signed gets released in writing by the bank, both names, before completion. The bank controls this, not the two of them, so it needs starting early.

4. The MG

The MG is registered to Trioangle and Vignesh has been the one using it. It goes with Vignesh as part of the swap.

5. What each partner has put in — both directions, nothing left out

Trioangle money went into InnBlockchain over the years, and Vignesh's salary sat unpaid in Trioangle over the same years. Neither was ever set up as a loan. Rather than leave either unmentioned, here is both sides:

	₹L
Trioangle money into InnBlockchain, still outstanding	46.7
Bowshul's half of that — what he is effectively out, once he no longer holds InnBlockchain	23.35

	₹L
Vignesh's unpaid director's salary left in Trioangle	31
Difference, in Vignesh's favour	≈7.65

Vignesh is not asking for the difference. Both sides are extinguished at completion and neither partner owes the other anything.

None of Bowshul's money stays in Vignesh's company, none of Vignesh's stays in Bowshul's, and nothing follows either of them afterwards — in either direction, for any period. Better to set it out and have it come out level than leave a figure unsaid for either of them to wonder about later.

6. QoreUps — decided in the same deal

Both partners own half of it. Two ways to close it:

Option
Wind it up / strike off	Cleanest. Clients transitioned or given notice
It goes with Trioangle	Simplest — it's Trioangle's money in it

Either works for Vignesh — Bowshul's call. The one outcome to avoid is the two of them still jointly owning a third company after all this, with its clients and filings sitting there unowned.

7. The transition year

A full year of handover, same office.

- Vignesh resigns as director at completion and does the year as a consultant.
- Year one: nil charge, all-in — seats, electricity, internet, admin. The handover is what pays for it, and nothing accrues between the companies.
- From month 13: one all-in charge per seat. Rate settled nearer the time — market rate for comparable space locally, and if the two cannot agree on it, InnBlockchain moves out.
- One written licence at completion: 12-month term, 3 months' notice both ways. Deposit stays Trioangle's.
- Handover scoped to a set day a week or a named list of deliverables, ending on a date.

8. To complete

- ☐ Share transfers both ways
- ☐ Payables and statutory dues position confirmed before signing
- ☐ Guarantee releases in writing from the bank, both names
- ☐ QoreUps decided
- ☐ Inter-company balances netted and extinguished
- ☐ Non-compete and non-solicit, both ways
- ☐ Office licence signed
- ☐ One agreed line to the team and to clients, from both

Take whatever time is needed on it. The advisors do the paperwork — this is just the shape, so the decision is on numbers rather than on a conversation.